

Selectmen Fight Close

Surveyor Candidates Battling it out.

Charles Allen former Selectman is running against Edwin Eldredge who is seeking reelection for three years.

Mr. Allen has expressed himself against the widening of Cedar St. where he lives. Because of the loss of property the residents of this street would have to give up if the road was widened. Mr. Edwin Eldredge his opponent seems rather indifferent on this matter but decidedly favors zoning. Mr. Allen has not expressed himself on this problem of zoning but he is for it.

Running for surveyor we see J. Lewis Tuttle who at present is surveyor running for reelection. Clyde Eldredge, Rodney Eldredge, Oscar Doane, Lyle Nickerson, Albert Kendrick, and Everett Small. All of these men seem most capable because most of them have worked on road improvement. For the all important school committee are: Miss Virginia Harding, Joseph Cleverdon, Edna Matteson, and Edith Nickerson. Miss Harding and Mrs Matteson stand out in this race.

George Washington's Fame

George Washington was famous throughout the colonies. He was a gallant leader in Revolutionary War. With the aid of such gallant leaders as "Mad Anthony Wayne" he succeeded in freeing the colonies from England. George Washington was the first President of the U.S. He established the beginning of U.S. Government. Even since the famous day of April 30, 1789 we have honored him. Everybody is trying to find a point of criticism which has been made by many is the non-expression of policy by many of the candidates of the smaller positions. In the Select-men's fight there is a direct issue but it seems to me that in most of the lower positions the candidates will say, "I will be glad for myself to have the job. With no expression of policy whatever. How can you elect a man if you don't know even what he stands for.
You may take a guess at his policy but a guess is a guess in plain
words can

Zoning is again up
as an article a little simpler than it was a year ago but still

with all the bla bla
about residential districts and so on. It has been said that if it were shortened it would probably pass
unanimously, but as it is now people don't know if their back
porch will be declared illegal. Suppose someone did start a shop
over at Chatham Light say some people, It
could be no crime.
Last year the town
meeting spent three hours on zoning, and not hours at that.

But this year it
not the candidates
express themselves
better.

before the Town Meeting asking for the closing of the town right of way through the property of Mrs Wheelwright is unjust and unfair to the majority of the citizens of Chatham.
Even if the fishing industry is practically gone there are still a large number of the citizens of this town who earn their living by fishing. The beaches are rapidly being bought up and how are the fishermen going to get to the water.
They have a right to keep it open.
looks as though the
the clerk will only have time to read the article before it is thrown to the wolves. In other words zoning is practically a past subject in Chatham until something simpler is proposed.
